Is Hanged in Ponton-

Had Hanged Irish Soldiers, Loyal to sentment Against Former Knight.*By Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Roger Casement, former British knight and consul, was hanged at 9 o'clock this morning in Pontonville jail for high treason. He was convicted of conspiring to cause an armed revolt in Ireland and with having brought German aid to that end.

Three hours before the execution a crowd of men, women and children gathered before the prison gates. Twenty minutes before Casement mounted the scaffold the great prison bell commenced to toll. The sound was greeted with jeers from the crowd, mingled with some groans. At 9 o'clock the crowd had swelled to such proportions that it extended for two blocks from the prison front.

At one minute after 3 a single stroke of the big bell announced that the trap had been sprung. It was the signal for a mocking, jeering yell from the crowd, which suddenly died away into dead silence.

Casement met his death with calm courage. Early in the morning, two priests of the Roman Catholic Church administered the last rites in his cell and shortly afterwards a little procession, headed by the clergyman, with Casement following, a warrior on either side, proceeded toward the execution shed, only five yards away. The priests recited the litany of the dying. Casement responded in low tones:

"Lord have mercy on my soul."
As the party reached the shed where the gallows was erected, the special executioner, a hair dresser named Ellis, approached Casement and quickly plucked him. The two chaplains, the undersheriff of London and the undersheriff of Middlesex then took up their positions in front of the scaffold. Casement mounted the gallows steps firmly and commenced his spirit to God as he stepped on the trap. A moment later the lever was pulled.

Immediately after the trap was sprung the prison engineer and physician descended into the pit where after the application of the usual tests, Casement was pronounced dead at 3 minutes after 9. According to the custom in the case of prisoners hanged for crimes similar to that of Casement, his body will be buried in quicklime in the prison yard, but probably no decision as to the burial will be made until after the inquest.

An affecting incident took place outside the prison walls as the execution was in progress. At the back of the prison a little distance from the jeering crowd about the gates, was a group of about 50 Irish men and women. When the dull clang of the prison bell announced that the doomed man had paid the last penalty, this little group fell on their knees and with bowed heads, remained for some moments, silently praying for the repose of the soul of their dead fellow countryman.

Ellis, the executioner, arrived in the prison early last evening and immediately made his preparations. He examined the trap door in the execution shed and tested it thoroughly with a bag exactly the same weight as Casement. Ellis remained in the prison all night.

Casement showed not the slightest concern over his fate. He ate well and chatted freely and cheerfully with two wardens in his condemned cell. After a hearty late supper he divested himself for the last time of his convict clothes and went to bed. He was notified that he would be allowed to wear his own civilian clothes for the execution, though would not be permitted to wear a collar.

All the members of Casement's family were Protestants, and he was brought up in that faith, but became a convert to Roman Catholicism within the last few weeks. On June 29 he was registered as a member of the Roman Catholic Church, and since that time Father McCarroll and Carey of Eden Grove Church, near the prison, have been ministering to him. He received his first and only communion at 7 o'clock this morning, when he assisted at mass in his cell. One of his attendants said that his overpowering love for God and Ireland was most striking. According to this attendant, the last words of the condemned man, apart from his prayers, were:

"I die for my country."

Father McCarroll said that he found Casement to be a beautiful character and that he never instructed anyone in his religion who showed himself a quicker or more promising learner.

All hope of an eleventh hour reprieve was dashed to earth yesterday with the statement of Lord Robert Cecil, parliamentary under secretary of foreign affairs, that no government would take any duty could interfere with the sentence. Supplementing this were the dramatic disclosures of Lord Newington in the House of Lords that the LONDON, August 3.—"During the night we continued the work of consolidating the ground which we had gained and in opening up communications," says the British official statement issued today. "Our guns were active and the enemy's artillery retaliated briskly during the evening along our front from Malz farm to Longueval; also on the wood of Mametz and Pricourt and Becourt and the village of Fozieres."

WILSON IS WATCHINGPlans to Intervene if Railroad Strike Seems Certain.*By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, August 3.—William L. Chambers, commissioner of the federal board of mediation and conciliation, was called in by President Wilson today in connection with the threatened strike of 400,000 employees of the railroads of the country. The President is anxious to get all the information possible on the situation in order to intervene if a strike seems inevitable.

The mediation board is gathering facts in anticipation that the strike vote now being canvassed will favor a walkout and that the railroads and their employees will be unable to reach an agreement. When this point is reached the board expects to be called in to attempt to settle the differences.

Biddle, ordnance officers of the Tenth, Sixteenth and Eighteenth regiments will leave for home tonight, their commissions having been abolished by the new military law.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—A strike of street railway employees, filing up every surface line in Manhattan, The Bronx and Queens county, seemed inevitable today.

The leaders of the union recently organized among the employees today delivered an ultimatum to the railway companies, giving them until 3 P. M. tomorrow to grant their demands and efforts today by Mayor Mitchell to bring about arbitration failed.

Line steamship Britannia of 3,487 tons

NOW ON THE WEST SIDE

The old fire house on the East Side was closed last night and, pending the solution of the problem of where to locate the new central fire station, the East Side is without fire fighting equipment. The new $6,250 hook and ladder truck is still at the Lyttel and Marsh garage on West Main street, while the two other trucks are located in the West Side station. This puts all of the fire fighting machines on the other side of the river.

The East Side station was a station in name only. Situated in the alley near Duff's livery stable, it was not a habitation for the firemen and fire department officials had thought of closing it for some time. Only one man had been stationed there while the old wagon was being converted into an automobile truck. Last night Chief W. L. DeWolf moved everything from the stable and closed it.

"The hose truck is now in service and will be used in case of necessity,"

VIEWERS TO PASS ON A PROPOSED NEW BRIDGE OVER YOUGH*Will Look Over the Site and gust 25.*DECISION MEANS GREAT DEAL*Should They Approve Project Those Agitating It Feel That Success

Would Be Reasonably Certain; The Exact Location Is Decided Upon.*By Associated Press.

Three county viewers, W. H. Binns, J. V. E. Ellis and David M. Bane, will meet in Dunbar township at 10 o'clock on Friday, August 25, to view the location for the proposed bridge across the Yough river at South Connellsville and decide if there is occasion for such a structure. The much-desired bridge, for which nearly 1,000 citizens of South Connellsville and Dunbar township have signed a petition, is squarely up to the viewers. An order of court gives them authority to locate the position for the bridge, if they decide that it is necessary.

The bridge would begin on the east side of the Yough on a line of a proposed road in South Connellsville, 644 feet distant from the center of the intersection of Baldrige avenue and Payer Mill road, the landing being 51.65 feet from the east rail of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. It would be 153 feet distant from the northwest corner of the plant of the Wilder Metal Tanning Company, running somewhere in the vicinity of the road leading down to the old safe works and the Wilder plant.

The landing would be in Dunbar township on line with a proposed new public road, 135 feet north of the intersection of the Patomac branch of the Baltimore & Ohio and the Western Maryland railroad, or a short distance on the Connellsville side of the West Penn power house. A new road would continue up the hollow and eventually connect up with the road from Wheeler in Dunbar.

A bridge of this sort has been talked of for many years but the actual necessity for it never became so great as at the present time when the Western Maryland railroad by undertaking the construction of big yards in Harford bottom put that section of Dunbar township on the map permanently. There is pressing need for a viaduct connecting South Connellsville with Dunbar township in the vicinity of the new yards.

The announcement that viewers had been named to pass upon this bridge and road came as a pleasant surprise to those interested in the project and every effort will be put forth to have the county officials recommend the erection of the structure.

OIL PRICES CUTRefiners Predict Drop in the Price of Gasoline.*By Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 3.—All grades of Pennsylvania crude oil, with the exception of Ragland, were reduced 10 cents a barrel at the opening of the market today, and Ragland was reduced 5 cents. The new prices are: Pennsylvania crude, $2.40; Moreau black, Corning and New Castle, $1.90; Cabell, $1.92; Somerset, $1.75 and Ragland, 75 cents.

Oil authorities said that as long as there was any prospect of crude oil advancing they were unable to obtain the vast quantities stored throughout the Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Eastern Ohio field, but that the price was cut last week they were flooded with so much oil that another cut was deemed advisable.

Refiners said the next move in the market would be reduced quotations for gasoline.

MIDDLESBORO, Ky., Aug. 3.—Between 15 and 25 persons were drowned and enormous property damage was sustained by a clodburst in Blaine creek, near Tazewell, Tenn., last night, according to information which has reached here today. Telephone messages from there say about 100 persons lived along the creek and of these only a few have been accounted for.

Nine bodies have been recovered. City officials and citizens of Tazewell have organized rescue parties and are scouring the stricken district in search of the dead. The region is very rough and communication which normally is not of the best has been practically cut off.

Blaine creek is 10 miles long and it is estimated that 150 people live in this neighborhood although only 100 of them are supposed to have been directly in the path of the clodburst or endangered by the waters of the creek overflowing its banks.

The bodies that have been found are Robert Johnson, his wife and two children; Mrs. Samuel Wiley and two children, Bush Hargerson and wife.

BARBERSVILLE, Ky., Aug. 3.—A wall of water following a clodburst rushed down Elm Hollow mining district early today causing large damage. Houses and live stock were carried with the flood, but up to noon no lives were reported lost.

The walls of water reached a Louisville & Nashville trestle a few moments after a southbound passenger train had passed. The trestle was washed out and all trains have been delayed.

ANOTHER ARRESTConstables Say Scheepke Was Rent
Proprietor of Alleged Speakeasy.

Charles Scheepke was arrested yesterday by Constable Samuel Faxon on a charge of selling liquor without a license and selling on Sunday, preferred by Constable Matthew Monahan. Scheepke waived a hearing before Alderman Eugene O'Donovan, and gave $500 bail for appearance in court. It is alleged that Scheepke was the owner of an alleged speakeasy at Casparis, raided Sunday by the two constables. Antonio Depore, the constables say, was only Scheepke's clerk. The alleged speakeasy was a store at Casparis, where merchandise was furnished to workmen for tickets. The constables say that beer could be bought by the same tickets.

After the raid, Depore made information against Constables Monahan, Faxon and Jernace, saying that they had stolen beer and sold it without paying the license. All three were held for court.

MORE PLAGUE CASES.Number of New Victims in New York

NEW YORK, August 3.—The epidemic of infantile paralysis reached the high mark today in the number of new cases. The health department's figures showed that 217 developed during the 24 hours ended at 10 a. m. and that the death list for the same period was 43, two more than yesterday.

Seventy-six were stricken in Manhattan alone, where the epidemic now appears to be centered.

GUARANTORS BUSY

Disposed Of.*PRICE CUTTING IS RESENTED*No Necessity for It, They Say, and Those Who Do Violate Agreement.
Besides Harming Fellow Guarantors;
Program Will Open Saturday.*By Associated Press.

Connellsville's fourth annual Chautauqua will open on Saturday, to continue for one week, and during the past few days there has been a revival of interest in the ticket selling campaign, which suffered from lethargy up to the present. Despite the fact that the guarantors are apparently facing the necessity of meeting the shortage they declare "no prospects are not so gloomy as they were. Having awakened to the realization that they will likely have to pay up, the guarantors themselves are conducting a ticket selling campaign that promises to bring good results."

In their favor this year is the fact that the Chautauqua program promises to be better than either last year or the year previous, both of which were somewhat disappointing. This year the Redpath bureau, according to advance information, has come to the front with a program that compares more favorably with the remarkable offering of the first year. Experienced lecture course folks say there isn't a weak number on it.

The Chautauqua tents will likely arrive tomorrow, to be pitched on the South Side lot. The first number will be Saturday afternoon, and twice daily after that, with special morning features of particular interest.

A majority of the guarantors are inclined to resent the price cutting alleged against some of them.

"I'll give my tickets away before I will sell them for less than the regular price," one man declared. "If the Chautauqua program isn't worth $2, I don't want anything. The man who sells his ticket at a cut rate not only violates the terms under which the tickets were guaranteed, but is hurting every other guarantor. I believe all the tickets will be sold. Some of the guarantors are getting cold feet a day or two too soon."

HERE TO BOSS WORKG. O. Schenck Moves to Town While School Building Goes Up.

G. O. Schenck of the firm of Schenck & Company, contractors of the new Crawford school building, moved his family and household goods to Connellsville yesterday. He will reside in the Alex. Hurr property on North Seventh street where the construction work on the new school is in progress. Mr. Schenck is a son of George Schenck, head of the firm, and he has been associated with his father in a number of contracts.

Mr. Schenck's household goods were moved here from Butler by automobile truck, a big machine of the J. E. Miller Transfer Company having made the trip in good time.

An initial payment of $1,237.50 was made yesterday on the Crawford building. The Schenck company's estimate for excavating and material was approved by Architect Altman and payment made by the board. The excavating is progressing rapidly and part of it is in such shape that the forms for concrete foundations can be set up at once. The lumber for the forms is on the ground.

Double Tracking Lake Erie.
The double tracking of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad between Fayette City and Newell is progressing rapidly. It is announced that the second track will later be extended to Brownsville.

16 WEDDINGS IN TWO YEARS TOO MANY FOR THE LADY MACCABEES

Because too many of its members are indulging in matrimony, the Women's Benefit Association of the Maccabees may in the future discontinue its custom of giving gifts to every bride from the organization. During the last two years 16 members have been married.

The association gives presents worth having, consequently the expense has become something of a drain upon the treasury. It was decided at a meeting Tuesday night to make the customary presentations to Mrs. McHinton and Mrs. Vowler, the most recent victims of Cupid.

One new member was admitted and plans were discussed for increasing the membership during the month of August.

It was decided to accept the invitation of the Maccabees to attend their picnic at Sandy Grove on August 13. The next meeting will be held August 25. Refreshments were served.

BARGAIN DAYS ARE THE TOWN'S BEST*Merchants Delighted Over the Showing That Was Made This Year.

Connellsville merchants are delighted over the sales made on Bargain Days, which eclipsed all former records by a wide margin. The business yesterday was surprisingly brisk for the second day, which usually falls some distance behind the first.

One merchant, whose store is a rather large one, declared that the sales on the first Bargain Day exceeded the combined sales last year by approximately $100. Other merchants reported equally large gains. Last year was the best up to that time. The clerks were glad when the store closed last evening. They declared they put in two of the most strenuous days in their experience. Yesterday was likened to a very busy Saturday, while Tuesday, the first day of the sale, compared with the grand rush just before Christmas.

The demand for merchandise was so great that several of the stores exhausted their supply of advertised bargains and were forced to substitute other articles. Shoppers generally commented upon the splendid values they received.

The success of Bargain Days once more confirms the fact that Connellsville is the shopping center of the whole coke region.

CROWD AT OUTINGSecond Day of West Penn Picnic Promises to Break All Records.

The second day of the West Penn picnic promised to break all records for attendance. The special cars which left Connellsville throughout the morning were filled with happy picnicers and those which left other points on the West Penn system contained just as many. With 3,000 in attendance on Tuesday, it was expected that at least 4,000 would be at the picnic today.

For some reason the second day of the picnic is always the "big day." The largest crowd attends, though every effort is put forth by the committees to equalize the attendance. The same program is carried out each day, the same prizes are given and the same preparations are made but the second day always noses out ahead, and this year was no exception to the rule.

The main street offices of the company were closed all day to permit the clerical force to attend.

HEADWAY ON PICNICMerchants Start Ticket Selling Contest and Arrange Other Details.

The committee in charge of the Merchants' & Manufacturers' outing at Oakford Park, August 22, has announced that round trip tickets will be sold at 65 cents for adults and 35 cents for children. A ticket selling contest has been started and $10 in gold will be given to the person selling the largest number. There will also be eight other prizes.

A committee is working on a list of prizes in the athletic contests at the park and another is making a canvass of the city in an effort to have merchants close their stores on the picnic day. Kiefer's orchestra has been engaged for dancing.

A baseball game between Trotter and the Baltimore & Ohio Shops will be a feature of the day.

CHARGED WITH THEFTTom Williams Alleged to Have Stolen
Ham From Restaurant.

Tom Williams was arrested at about 10:30 o'clock this morning on a charge of stealing a large ham from the cellar of Bishop's restaurant. When taken by Chief Rottler, he is said to have confessed the theft, and directed the chief to go to his brother-in-law's home on Franklin avenue, where he had hidden the ham. Williams' brother-in-law claimed that he knew nothing of the affair. The ham was found in a box outside the house.

Williams will be arraigned before Alderman Fred Munk, on a charge of larceny preferred by Carl Bishop.

Greensburg Picnic.

The Greensburg merchants' picnic was held today at Idlewild Park.

SCHOOL OF METHODSCounty Teachers to Attend Meetings at Uniontown August 21 and 22.

The third annual school of methods for teachers in the Fayette county schools will be conducted in the high school at Uniontown on Monday and Tuesday, August 21 and 22. County Superintendent J. S. Carroll is working on a program.

Among the speakers will be Frank Jones, supervising principal for Upper Tyrone, Lower Tyrone and Connellsville townships; Thomas H. Means, principal of North Union township schools; E. W. Wright, principal of Uniontown high school; J. B. Geisinger, principal of the Greensburg high school; Robert C. Shaw, superintendent of the Westmoreland county schools, and R. K. Smith, principal of the Dunbar township schools.

Mr. Carroll is urging a larger attendance this year. The record number on hand last year was something to be proud of, he says, but there are many more teachers in the county who ought to take advantage of this opportunity for benefit themselves.

TO REVOLUTIONIZE HEATING OF HOMES, INVENTOR ASSERTS

R. De Polo Says His Furnace Will Do Work for $3 a Month.

A PRACTICAL TEST IS MADE

Device is installed in inventor's residence, and does all that is claimed for it. He Says: That is Also Very Economical Over It.

R. De Polo, a Conneltsville man, has completed an invention which he claims will revolutionize the heating problem. He has a system by which an entire house can be heated from one ordinary coal or gas stove. The invention promises to lower the cost of living to an extent almost impossible to appreciate, for those interested claim that an entire house can be heated for a cost of about $3 a month.

The invention is practical. It has just been installed in the house of the inventor, and has been a complete success, he declares. S. S. Snider installed the system and is quite enthusiastic about it.

"I was skeptical about it at first," he says, "but now that I have seen that it works, I am sure that it will revolutionize the whole heating business. I shall put one in my own home."

The invention is fully protected by patents. Mr. De Polo has made its plans as yet to market his invention, but will probably do so in the near future.

The main idea is a gravity system of hot air. The chimney is built out, to include a number of Dees. These Dees are alternately smoke and hot air flues. The air is kept warm by an ordinary coal or gas stove. Cold air comes up these flues from the cellar, where a large pipe carries it in from the open. Flues from each flue lead to registers placed as close to the chimney as possible. The cold air is thus warmed and carried to the different rooms, fresh warm air being always present.

The features of the system will not be appreciated by any but men in the heating business at this time, Mr. De Polo thinks, as it is hard to realize the importance of the discovery. People will soon understand the great saving made, possible by it, however, and the coal and fuel supply will be greatly conserved he declares.

DEUTCHSLAND GETS SAFELY OUT TO SEA

German Submarine Makes Successful Dash for Freedom; No Warships Sighted.

By Associated Press.

NORFOLK, Va., August 3.—The German submarine merchant ship, Deutschland, passed out of the Cape and beyond the three-mile limit at 8:30 o'clock last night.

Her departure to sea followed an 18-mile dash through the lower Chesapeake Bay. After proceeding slowly most of the way down, she increased her power at 6:30, and reached the Cape just after dusk. None of the Allied cruisers was visible as she passed through.

Whether she submerged before reaching the three-mile limit is unknown. The two accompanying boats only know that she disappeared, unnamed, and that to all appearances she had a clear field ahead to a point where she could completely submerge in safety.

Half an hour after the last light of the Deutschland had disappeared the tug Transil, seemingly satisfied with her work, turned back and headed up Chesapeake Bay in the direction of Baltimore.

During part of the day the Deutschland had remained hidden at a cove up Chesapeake Bay.

HAS GOOD YEAR

Western Maryland Sets New Record in 1915.

Revenue figures for the fiscal year ending June 30 last were made public yesterday by the Western Maryland Railway Company, which showed that the road had the best 12 months in its history. Total gross revenues were $10,930,369.09, an increase of $2,246,910.13. Operating expenses were $7,039,508.19, or $752,196.98 more than the previous fiscal year. Operating income was $3,890,860.90, a gain of $1,421,971.15.

After allowing for all interest deductions, including interest on the $16,000,000 of short-time notes, which have been in default for more than a year, the company earned a surplus of $500,000, or $104,000 in excess of a full four per cent on the $10,000,000 issue of preferred stock. No dividend on the preferred has been paid for several years.

How to Heal Skin-Diseases

A Baltimore doctor suggests this simple, but reliable and inexpensive, home treatment for people suffering with eczema, ringworm, rashes and similar itching, burning skin troubles.

At any reliable drugstore get a jar of Resinol ointment and a cake of Resinol soap. These are not at all expensive. With the Resinol soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the Resinol ointment, and cover with a light bandage—if necessary to protect the clothing. This should be done twice a day. Usually the itching and burning stop with the first treatment and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again.

Almost any soap will clean the skin and hair. But those who want a soap which not only cleanses but actually helps the complexion and hair are wise to choose Resinol soap.

He acted in a sane manner to the end."

CROWDS FLOCK TO SHADY GROVE PARK

Conneltsville Day Draws Big Attendance; Many Features are Offered.

Despite the competition which was faced, Conneltsville Day at Shady Grove yesterday was a big success. Hundreds upon hundreds of persons went to the park yesterday to spend the afternoon or evening, or both. The West Penn ran extra cars, and most of them were jammed.

Joe Nittoli's band and an elaborate fireworks display were the special features offered by Manager R. G. Coyle. The fireworks were particularly fine. Dancing was the principal amusement. Nittoli's band played the one-steps and Kiforle's orchestra the waltzes. The music was better than usual.

In view of the fact that the West Penn picnic was held this week, and Conneltsville had its Bargain Days, the attendance at Shady Grove was remarkable. This annual event has always proven popular.

One hundred and forty-two babies were examined by the judges in the baby contest and after careful consideration, 18 months old Charles Sturgeon, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sturgeon of Isabella road, Conneltsville, was awarded the first prize. The judges were J. W. Riley, N. Plazo and G. W. Logan of Pittsburg, none of whom had ever seen any of the babies before or were acquainted with their parents. A system of numbers was also used to assure absolute fairness in the award of the prizes.

COAL PRICES HIGHER

Increasing Demand, Labor Shortage are the Main Factors.

The market for bituminous coal is generally becoming more active and prices are showing an upward tendency. The shortage of labor is contributing to a rise in price. This condition is being acutely felt in the Fairmont and Clarksburg regions of West Virginia. Dealers in distributing centers are a trifle slow in placing orders for fall delivery, seeming to be willing to trust to luck later in the season.

In the Pittsburgh district there is practically no free coal, contract demands taking all that can be produced under present conditions. Standard run of mine is quoted first at $1.50, and sales are reported in special instances at $1.65 to consumer, while standard gas slack has been selling anywhere from $1.10 to $1.20, lower grades following close at 95 cents and $1, and all grades. Three-quarter at $1.70 to $1.80 f. o. b. Prices have shown considerable variation, but the tendency is always upward.

A severe coal shortage is looked for this fall, in consequence of the movement of the crops. It is difficult to obtain gondola cars at present and some mines are getting scarcely any. Operators are advised by the railroads that they are doing the best they can, but that they cannot promise to furnish cars any more; promptly than they are doing. The movement of all kinds of freight continues strong.

TRAIN OF BOTTLE CAPS

Twenty-five Cars Contain Millions of Little Seals.

For the first time in transportation history a solid train of 25 cars, containing nothing but bottling caps, passed through Hagerstown, Md., on Monday via the Blue Ridge Dispatch, fast freight line, which operates over the Western Maryland.

These 25 cars made up the branch service special of the Crown Cork and Seal Company of Baltimore, and it is said that two other sections, equally large, will follow shortly in order to meet the requirements of this company's customers who are supplied through its 21 branches conveniently located throughout the country.

It is interesting to note that this first section of 25 cars contains over a half million gross of crowns for sealing beverages of every description and enough bottle stoppers to seal a bottled beverage for each of the hundred million population boasted by the United States.

B. & O. Big Coal Tonnage.

Bituminous coal hauled over the lines of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad during the year ended June 30 amounted to 3,275,378 tons, compared with 29,359,957 tons for the previous 12 months, a gain of 4,916,331 tons. This tonnage, which is a record, represents a 2.3 per cent of the total shipments for the year.

Cholera Victims from Oregon.

YOKOHAMA, Aug. 3.—The Japanese steamship Hawaii Maru bound from Oriental ports for Tacoma, Washington, has been indefinitely quarantined at this port owing to an outbreak of cholera on board. Fifteen cases of the disease were found in the storage; four of them proving fatal.

Coal Prices at Baltimore.

Current prices of coal f. o. b. Baltimore are as follows: Somerset, best, $2.68; good, $2.53. Western Maryland and Baltimore & Ohio Freeport, $2.18. Fairmont, mine run, $2.73; three-quarter, $2.78; slack, $2.63. Best South Fork, $2.68; Miller vein, $2.63; ordinary, $2.48.

F TOO FAT GET

MORE FRESH AIR

Be Moderate in Your Diet and Reduce Your Weight. Take Oil of Kōrelin.

Lack of fresh air it is said weakens the oxygen carrying power of the blood, the liver, becomes sluggish, fat accumulates and the action of many of the vital organs are hindered thereby. The heart action becomes weak, work is an effort and the beauty of the figure is destroyed.

Put on by indoor life is unhealthy and if nature is not assisted in throwing it off a serious case of obesity may result.

Spend as much time as you possibly can in the open air; breathe deeply, and get from A. A. Clarke or Dr. Druggist a box of oil of kōrelin capsules, take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself every few days and keep up the treatment until you are down to normal. Oil of kōrelin is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, helps the digestion and even a few days' treatment has been reported to show a noticeable reduction in weight.

Among Greene County's on Charter
Application of New Railroad.

Greene county's await with considerable interest the decision of the Public Service Commission on the application of the Wheeling & Eastern railroad for a certificate of public convenience. At the hearing on the application held July 5th Mrs. W. C. Jutte appeared to protest against the issuance of the certificate on the ground that her husband had acquired prior location rights along the intended route.

She was given 15 days within which to file formal complaint. It is not known whether she has done so. The attorney for the railroad company filed their brief within 10 days following the hearing.

The matter is expected to come before the Public Service Commission at its meeting to be held on August 7.

Some inquiry from railroads for cars is becoming current. It is not known whether they can get men to unload the cars and this is continuing to act as an embargo on the movement of coal, even as it did last week. The result situation of coal is for some profitable for both sides.

Reviewing the coal trade situation generally The Black Diamond says: "Both producers and retailers are beginning to get into a stew over the coal situation. The producers naturally want to get some of the domestic coal moving, because it is getting uncomfortably close to the big buying period without much storage coal having been moved."

"The retailers would like to feel a little more comfortable about their supply and to have some coal on hand, especially for the harvest period. However, the universal complaint of retail-

RAILROAD WAGES

Shall they be determined by Industrial Warfare or Federal Inquiry?

To the American Public:

Do you believe in arbitration or industrial warfare?

The train employees on all the railroads have voted whether they will give their leaders authority to tie up the commerce of the country to enforce their demands for a 100 million dollar wage increase.

The railroads are in the public service—your service. This army of employees is in the public service—your service.

You pay for rail transportation 3 billion dollars a year, and 44 cents out of every dollar from you goes to the employees.

On all the Eastern Railroads in 1915, seventy-five per cent of the train employees earned these wages (lowest, highest, and average of all) as shown by the payrolls—

	Passenger		Freight		Yard
	Range	Average	Range	Average	Range	Average
Engineers	$1641 3224	$1931	$1585 2992	$1783	$1303 2178	$1543
Conductors	1553 3004	1831	1552 2901	1642	1145 1991	1315
Firemen	951 1704	1128	933 1762	1109	752 1633	935
Brakemen	957 1707	1141	862 1521	973	834 1635	1085

The average yearly wage payments to all Eastern train employees (including those who worked only part of the year) as shown by the 1915 payrolls were—

	Passenger	Freight	Yard
Engineers	$1796	$1546	$1384
Conductors	1724	1404	1238
Firemen	1033	903	844
Brakemen	1018	858	990

A 100 million dollar wage increase for men in freight and yard service (less than one-fifth of all employees) is equal to a 5 per cent advance in all freight rates.

The managers of the railroads, as trustees for the public, have no right to place this burden on the cost of transportation to you without a clear mandate from a public tribunal speaking for you.

The railroads have proposed the settlement of this controversy either under the existing national arbitration law, or by reference to the Interstate Commerce Commission. This offer has been refused by the employees' representatives.

Shall a nation-wide strike or an investigation under the Government determine this issue?

RESULTS OF COMPENSATION.

The first six months' operation of the Workmen's Compensation Act has demonstrated the wisdom of the law; proven its utility as a means of affording relief for the victims of industrial accidents or their dependents, and marked a decided forward step in the establishment of a better relationship between employer and employee. Workmen's Compensation has performed the useful and desirable function of eliminating from our industrial life groups of legal sharks who formerly preyed upon confidence, clients in the prosecution of claims for damages. If the law had done no more than to make it impossible for the awards received to be absorbed in the expenses of collection, or diverted from the purposes they were intended to serve, it will have proven a valuable addition to our statutes.

The new law has imposed rather heavy burdens on some industries, notably coal mining, but the distribution of the cost as a whole has been fairly equitable. There are minor deficiencies which will no doubt be remedied at the next session of the Legislature.

The marked advantage of the law, from the standpoint of the employer, is that it has reduced to a system the matter of adjusting accident claims. The employer is relieved of the annoyance and expense of defending numerous and often petty suits at law and is safeguarded from being molested for damages out of all proportion to the injuries sustained.

The employee, often the victim of a disabling accident, is not forced to seek out a precarious existence while awaiting the final adjudication of his claim, but receives his compensation with the same regularity as he received his semi-monthly pay.

The public is relieved of the duty or necessity of assisting those who under the earlier system often became public charges, a duty which was sometimes grudgingly and more frequently indifferently performed. The public continues to pay its share of the cost, but it now does so indirectly.

PATRIOTISM AND POLITICS.

A number of congressmen are making themselves little short of ridiculous, and at the same time making life a torment for the National Guard officers on the Mexican border, by their importunities to get men out of the service in order that they may return home.

With an overwhelming desire to gain some political point through the exercise of their reputed "influence," congressmen are befuddling the mail with letters to officers at the front urging the release of men who are more than willing to discharge their full duty by remaining on the border as long as they may be needed.

Whatever may be the personal opinion of the guardians about the emergency which has occasioned their movement to the border, they have had enough of real soldiering to know the work of making them floundering in the service, in case it is required, should be allowed to proceed free from interference by congressmen, politicians or politicians.

While politics has doubtless had something to do with the mobilization of the guardians on the border, the men who have responded to the call did so out of a patriotism that knows no politics.

THE BIRD IS BAGGED.

"Having bagged the German vote and the Trust vote and several other special interest votes, Fussyfoot Hughes is now gunning for the Woman's vote," says the Uniontown Standard.

And all accounts agree that this Republican gunner has bagged the Woman's Suffrage vote, bringing it down the first shot. Professor Wilson is still dancing away, but there's nothing left to shoot.

It is enough to make the old Democratic trapper of the conical variety mad.

If it be true, as the Democrats charge, that the Supreme Court was "packed" for the purpose of electing a Republican candidate for President, it is a righteous and justifiable raid. There is no mightier power than that of Chief Justice and all subordinate positions must contribute to it when called upon.

Connellsville's Bargain Days were the biggest ever and they demonstrated anew the value of advertising in the right manner and at the right medium.

Early and late, the West Penn plunkers are having a merry time.

The Pittsburgh Pay Roll is on a strike, thus demonstrating that a city job is not always a sinecure.

Eljah, the West Virginia prophet, believes in blowing his horn, though he doesn't always blow the same one.

A nickel's worth of consideration is sometimes enough, especially when it's your fare.

There are no lies on Smithfield's radio, but his methods are sometimes distinctly fly.

An Armstrong county husband of four months shot his wife because he was tired of her. A Fayette county wife of four weeks has applied for a divorce for similar reasons. The Armstrong lawyers ought to advertise.

Some Connellsville motorists evidently believe in America First and want to look it over.

The corn has ears just now only for the green grocer.

The Leisenring lawn and garden.

are reported to be of an unusually high standard. Perhaps there should be some general prizes open to free-for-all entry.

The honor system as practised by the small boys in the South Connellsville building has been in the naked truth and unashamed, but it's too much for grown-ups.

In the meantime the new fire truck, like a big red monster, is resting under the Western Maryland railway on the West Side.

The Baltimore & Ohio may be able to stop transposing on its tracks, but it cannot prevent bathing in the river at South Connellsville. Better run the shuttle train.

Dunbar's new high school building has landed in court the first jump.

The Baltimore & Ohio telegraph operators want their wage demands submitted to official arbitration, but the railway trustees seem to have a lower prejudice against this method of settlement.

The cross-audits of a speaky computer against the constables who searched him will be viewed with a just suspicion in court.

Chautauqua tickets are bargains at low price.

The Waynesburg Democrat-Messenger notes that in Greene county, where there is but very little store of coal on coast, the land sharks are more to be dreaded than sea sharks.

The Chambersburg News reports that even in Washington there is a rising which comes from the electric border. The suspicion grows that the regulars in command have determined that the Fighting Tenth will do some fighting, and that the same shall try with the nation.

The Fighting Tenth is to bear the brunt of the battle paid in the news which comes from the electric border. The suspicion grows that the regulars in command have determined that the Fighting Tenth will do some fighting, and that the same shall try with the nation.

THREE TEACHERS LEAVE CORPS

Sollicitor Holds Board Would Not be Liable for Injuries Resulting from Students if Properly Instructed in the Use of Machinery; Notes

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, August 2.—At a meeting of the local School Board an agreement was renewed between the trustees of the public library and the school board. The trustees reported that $500 in tuition had been taken in during the past term. The solicitor at a previous meeting was asked if the school board would be liable to damages should any of the students be hurt with the machinery used in the public schools. They were advised that if the machinery was properly guarded, competent teachers employed, and the students instructed concerning the use of the machinery and the danger of it that they could not come on the school board for damages.

Former Supervising Principal W. M. Edwards put in a claim for back salary and the secretary stated that the money was not due him as when he had come to complete the unexpired term of Landis Tanager he had been paid at the rate of $1,500 per year. A motion was made to pay him money he claimed was due but the School Board solicitor advised that it be not paid and the motion was lost. The treasurer's report was read for the past year.

Supervising Principal J. Alden Marsh and J. R. Campbell were instructed to investigate the turning of Manual Training departments, Domestic Science and the Art department into a vocational school, and see if this can be done to comply with the state law so that state aid can be received for the school. A saving of $20 per year in telephone rental was made when it was decided to have a main line running to the high school and extensions to every other building. The resignation of Miss Elsie M. Miller, now Mrs. Charles Loucks, was read and accepted, as well as were those of Miss Nellie Berlin, a seventh grade teacher, and Howard S. Millan. A number of applications were in for a German teacher to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Loucks and of these Miss Laura Jean Jettett, a graduate of Smith, whose home is in Pittsburgh, was elected. This leaves three vacancies.

AN EASY WAY TO GET FAT AND BE STRONG

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on dragging their stomachs or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless "flesh cream," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

There is a preparation known to reliable druggists almost everywhere which seemingly embodies the missing elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich fat-laden blood. This modern treatment is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh-builders. Sargol aims through regenerative, constructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to the starved, broken-down cells and tissues of your body. You can readily picture what result this amazing transformation should produce as with increased weight the cheeks fill out, hollows about neck, shoulders and bust disappear and from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh is added to the body. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. All leading druggists of this vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

NOTE:—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.—Adv.

STATE WILL PROBE DELAYS IN PAYING INJURED WORKMEN

State-Wide Investigation to See That Compensation
Act is Obeyed.

INSPECTOR TO VISIT HOMES

Will Make Personal Inquiry Into Why
Compensation is Not Being Paid If Such Happens to be the Case; Employers Mostly Are Obeying Law.

HARRISBURG, Pa., August 2.—A state-wide investigation to ascertain whether compensation payments are being made to every injured worker, entitled to receive such payments, under the Workmen's Compensation Act, is being conducted under direction of Commissioner John Price Jackson of the Department of Labor and Industry.

Although hundreds of individual cases have been found where injured workers should be receiving compensation, the investigation has disclosed that, with few exceptions, employers are endeavoring to comply with the provisions of the Compensation Act. In most instances, lack of knowledge of the provisions of the law has been the cause of the delay.

Delays in reporting accidents, to the Department of Labor and Industry, have been discovered and letters have been sent from the Labor Department, to every employer, large and small, known to have held up an accident report. In this circular letter, the Act of Assembly of June 19, 1915, is cited which provides that unless accident reports are made, the employer is liable to a penalty of $100.00, following prosecution.

Paul N. Furman, chief of the Bureau of Statistics and Information of the Labor Department, has compared reports of accidents, with the records of agreements for compensation, filed in the Compensation Bureau, to determine where compensation is not being paid to employees who have sustained injuries and suffered disability for a greater period than two weeks. This comparison has disclosed where an employer or an insurance company is not making the payments required by law.

In every case, where it appears that compensation payments should be made, Commissioner Jackson has directed Lew R. Palmer, chief of the Bureau of Inspection, to send an inspector to the home of the injured employee to learn whether the worker is entitled to compensation, whether he is receiving it and, if not, the opinion of the employee as to why he is not receiving it.

Paul N. Furman has personally presented records of unpaid compensation to employers in Allegheny county, Philadelphia county, Lackawanna and Luzerne counties, and has learned that as a general condition the law has not been violated with deliberate intent.

The procedure adopted has been to supply every employer with accurate information of injuries received by his employees who are not receiving compensation. Blank report forms are also supplied each employer for him to report, in detail, to the Department of Labor and Industry, why the compensation was not paid and what action is being taken to correct the condition. This method will be followed by the Department of Labor and Industry throughout the entire state.

Every employee, injured in his employment, who has not received medical attention, and been disabled for more than 14 days and has not received compensation payments, may write to the Compensation Bureau of the Department of Labor and Industry, and his case will be thoroughly investigated. This action of the Labor Department is not a campaign but is one of the continuous activities of this state agency adopted by Commissioner Jackson following the passage of the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Chicago Seeks Relief From Heat in Waters of Lake Michigan

KEEPING COOL IN LAKE MICHIGAN

After killing 305 Chicagoans, including many babies, one of the worst hot spells in the city's history ended in an eighteen mile breeze from the north. The sufferers resorted to all known means of obtaining relief, and the Lake Michigan beaches were crowded. A mother and her two children in the lake waters, using an inner tube of an auto tire as a life buoy, are pictured. The hot spell began July 11, and for almost three weeks the temperature was constantly above normal. There is not indication of a return of the heat for several days, according to the weather bureau. Many other sections of the United States report protracted heat waves.

Where your Dollars go

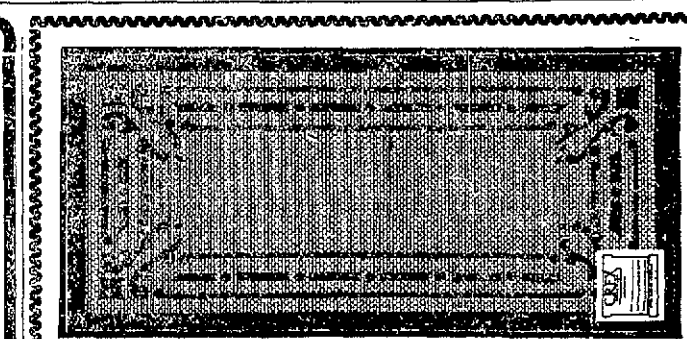

YOU enter a store, make your purchase and hand a dollar to the store-keeper. What becomes of it interests no one but the recipient. But what becomes of a dollar spent for a public utility service should be the concern of every user thereof! In the Bell System it takes an average investment of about $4.00 to earn $1.00 of yearly gross revenue. This average dollar quickly finds its way back to the public.

- 1.—46 1/2 cents are paid out in wages.
- 2.—24 cents are spent for expenses and material.
- 3.—5 1/2 cents go for taxes, contributing over $12,000,000 a year to the public purse.
- 4.—19 1/2 cents go for interest and dividends, the bond and stockholders (there are over ninety thousand of the latter, including thirty-two thousand employees) sharing in a yearly return that represents but 5% on the plant investment and less than 6% on the outstanding securities.
- 5.—4 1/2 cents are reinvested, as surplus, in telephone plant devoted to public use.

That a dollar well earned shall be well spent is a primary essential to the efficient, faithful conduct of a public service. That particularly is the purpose of the Bell System.

Trio of World Famous Artists to Be Here Seventh Day of the Chautauqua

MME. DORA DE PHILIPPE, DONALD McBEATH AND ARTHUR FIEDLER.

A rare musical treat will be offered to this community on the seventh night of the Chautauqua—a great concert recital by Mme. Dora De Philippe, prima donna of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, and her two associates, the world-famous artists, Donald McBeath and Arthur Fiedler.

Mme. Dora De Philippe is an extensive operatic, vocal and song repertoire giving her a most unusual combination of vocal programs and is regarded as one of the most versatile and gifted singers in this country. Her appearance here will be a musical event long to be remembered.

Donald McBeath, the young Australian violinist who will be heard with Mme. Philippe may be classed as one of the most gifted and popular of the young school of instrumentalists.

The third member of this illustrious trio, Arthur Fiedler, is also a great musician. Born in Boston, he received his early musical education from his father who was himself a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Later he studied in Berlin and has done extensive concert work as soloist and in ensemble all over Germany, Sweden and Denmark and has been a special protégé of leading members of the German nobility. Mr. Fiedler is a member of the famous Boston Symphony Orchestra—one of the best known organizations of the entire country.

Following the concert by the Westchester Choir on the third afternoon, James Hoffman, known as "The Little Giant of the Chautauqua," will deliver his powerful lecture, "The Pathfinder of Democracy." Mr. Hoffman ranks as a leading Chautauqua lecturer in this country and has always taken an active part in public and governmental affairs. His lecture is based on the life and character of Abraham Lincoln whom he terms "America's Greatest Commander," and presents new and interesting facts and observations drawn from the life of this greatly admired American leader.

Among the other attractions on the program are John Kendrick Bangs, luminous author and lecturer who has been in this managing editor of the "Metropolitan" magazine; Dr. Frederic Poole, Chinese authority on the interior of the Great Wall, who will lecture on the problems of his native land and will tell how these can best be solved; Dunbar's Solos, Singers, the Tschalkovsky String Quartet, the Wolvorne Male Quartet, the New York City Concert Band, Joseph Chilton, southern monodrama, Maxson's Antarctic pictures—showing the interesting life and scenery of the south pole and the Arctic regions; one of the most artistic musical companies on the Chautauqua platform. The program is perfectly balanced throughout—offering the best talent obtainable in the fields of music, entertainment and public and educational affairs.

Complete New Tipple.
The new steel Tipple of the Pittsburgh Coal Company at its mine at Roscoe has been completed. It is designed for both river and rail shipments.

MAKING LOCATION

Of the Extension of the P. R. R. to Clarksville, Greene County.

A corps of engineers is at work making the location of the extension of the Pennsylvania railroad has authorized to be built from Besco, Greene county up Ten Mile Creek to the proposed new coal development to be made near the village of Clarksville.

Preparatory to the work of constructing this extension a trestle at the mouth edge of Millboro at the junction of the Besco and Rice's Landing branches is being replaced by a concrete arch the Fredericktown Chronicle reports. This arch was made necessary so that entrance could be had to the old stone quarry which was willed to the people of Millboro forever, for building purposes by Jesse Bunsinger. The approaches to the arch are being permanently filled with earth.

It is expected that the activity of the engineers will soon be followed by actual work of construction. Meantime plans are being perfected for the mine development of W. H. Warner, J. Y. Humphreys and associates, which this extension will serve.

CAR SHORTAGE FEARED

By the Coal Operators of West Virginia and Kentucky Fields.

Coal operators of West Virginia and eastern Kentucky are considering measures to avert what they believe is destined to be a serious situation this fall when the heavy movement of coal from these fields is begun. With coming of midsummer season the lowest ebb in the coal traffic shortage of cars is being felt keenly and operators are fearful as to consequences once the heavy movements begin.

Kentucky operators during the summer have planned an invasion of the northern fields and a shortage of cars would seriously hamper their plans for development and expansion. Southern Ohio operators are also being hard hit as their storage facilities cannot equal those of Kentucky and West Virginia operators.

Rox Carbon Mine Sold.
The Rox Carbon mine near Avella, Washington county, has been sold to persons said to be acting in the interests of the Vetter Coal & Coke company, which recently took over the holdings of the Washington County Coal Company at Cedar Grove. What We Know And Do Not Know About Infantile Paralysis

By SAMUEL G. DIXON, M. D.
Commissioner of Health

WITH the history of the world's workers on Polomyelitis and the results of our own work before us we have to acknowledge that THE GERM OF THIS DISEASE HAS NOT BEEN FOUND, and further, that we do not know how the disease is communicated from one person to another.

There is no medicine or specific that will prevent it or cure it. DON'T LOSE YOUR HEAD! Avoid patent medicines—they do harm. Call in your family physician if you get sick, he will not tell you he has a remedy that is a sure cure, and any one who does, lies. Long attentive treatment under a good doctor of medicine, and helped if possible by a good nurse, will in many cases bring the child back to health.

There is not as much paralysis as commonly believed. The reports of the outbreak in New York seem to establish this. On the 13th of July New York reported 1,600 cases of Polomyelitis, but only 403 of paralysis. Until we know more about that which produces the disease and how it is communicated from one person to another we, with our present knowledge, STRENUOUSLY RECOMMEND the following precautions:

All excepting the doctor and the one nursing the person sick of the disease must keep out of the room set aside for the patient. If possible keep children out of the neighborhood in which the disease prevails.

Keep all insects out of houses, particularly flies. GUARD FOOD STUFFS FROM FLIES. Flies may carry the disease.

Feed children on cooked food as much as possible.

See that the outside of bread or biscuits is kept clean and away from flies. Wagons, trucks, etc., carrying bread should not be kept in horse stables.

Screen your houses and baby coaches or cribs or beds when the house is not fully screened.

The Department has literature on this subject which you can get upon written request.

THIS DEPARTMENT IS IN CONSTANT WARFARE TO PROTECT OUR PEOPLE FROM DISEASE TO ACCOMPLISH THE BEST RESULTS WE MUST NOT ONLY HAVE THE CONFIDENCE OF OUR PEOPLE BUT INDIVIDUAL AND PUBLIC CO-OPERATION.

BOONE'S PLACE IN HISTORY.

A Figure That Stands For All That Is Typical of Pioneer Days

Kentucky a rich country had original been a neutral zone threaded with Indian trails a territory where none might dwell, but through which all were at liberty to move in hunt or war. The shade of its forests was so dense the story of its white settlement so full of tragedy that it was known as the "dark and bloody ground."

The great character of its pioneer period had been Daniel Boone, whose picturesque, but legendary figure stands for all that is typical in that vanished phase of our national life. Born in Pennsylvania, he had grown to manhood on the banks of the Yadkin in North Carolina, had built his hut and married early after the fashion of the locality. But he found tilling the ground dull work when the forest called. Expeditions into it to hunt game or to make salt at the salt licks, where animals and men alike went to satisfy their cravings, only fastened its domination more firmly upon him, and when a wandering Indian trader stayed across his pathway and told him of the rich country to the west called Kentucky, which in the language of the red men meant at the head of the river, or Long river, he gave him self up to it with a fervor that was little short of fanaticism, believing himself "ordained of God to settle the wilderness."—Helen Nicolay, in Century Magazine.

Beyond the Frontier

A Romance of Early Days in the Middle West

Author of "Keith of the Border," "My Lady of Doubt," "The Maid of the Forest," etc.

Our progress up the Ottawa was so slow, so tedious, the days such a routine of labor and hardship, that I lost all conception of time. Except for the Jewell (I had scarcely a companion, and there were days, I am sure, when we did not so much as exchange a word.

The men had no rest from labor, even Cassion changing from boat to boat as necessity arose, urging them to renewed efforts. The water was low, the rapids more than usually dangerous, so that we were compelled to portage more often than usual. Once the leading canoe ventured to shoot a rapid not considered perilous, and had a great hole torn in its prow by a sharp rock. The men cut ashore, saving the wreck, but lost their stores of provisions, and we were a day there making the damaged canoe again serviceable.

This delay gave me my only glimpse of D'Artigny, still dripping from his involuntary bath, and so busily engaged at repairs as to be scarcely conscious of my presence on the bank above him. Yet I can hardly say that, for once he glanced up, and our eyes met, and possibly he would have joined me, but for the sudden appearance of Cassion, who swore at the delay, and ordered me back to where the tent had been hastily erected. I noticed D'Artigny straighten up, answered that Cassion dared speak to me so harshly, but I had no wish then to precipitate an open quarrel between the two men, and so departed quickly. Later, Father Allouez told me that in the overture of the canoe the young scout had saved the life of the Algonquian chief, bringing him ashore unconscious, helpless from a broken shoulder. This accident to Alouez led to the transferring of the injured Indian to our canoe and caused Cassion to join D'Artigny in advance.

It was five days later, and in the heart of all that was desolate and drear, when the long-sought opportunity came in most unexpected fashion. We had made camp early, because of rough water ahead, the passage of which it was not deemed best to attempt without careful exploration. So, while the three heavily laden canoes drew up against the bank, and prepared to spend the night, the leading canoe was stripped and sent forward, manned only with the most expert of the Indian paddlers to make sure the peril of the current. From the low bank to which I had climbed I watched the preparations for the dash through those muddy churning waters above, Cassion was testing his orders loudly, but exhibited no inclination to accompany the party, and suddenly the frail craft shot out from the shore, with D'Artigny at the steering paddle, and every Indian braced for his task, and headed boldly into the smother. They vanished as though swallowed by the mist, Cassion and a half dozen soldiers racing along the shore line in an effort to keep abreast of the laboring craft.

It was a wild, desolate spot in which we were, a mere rift in the bluffs, which seemed to overhang us, covered with a heavy growth of forest. The sun was still an hour high, although it was twilight already beside the river, when Cassion and his men came straggling back to report that the canoe had made safe passage, and, taking advantage of his good humor, I proposed a climb up an opening of the bluff, down which led a deer trail plainly discernible.

"Not I," he said, casting a glance upward. "The run over the rocks will do me for exercise tonight."

"Then will I say it alone," I replied, not displeased at his refusal. "I am cramped from sitting in the canoe so long."

"Will be a hard climb, and they tell me the pore has strained a tendon of his leg coming ashore."

"And what of that?" I burst forth, giving vent to my indignation. "Am I a ten-year-old to be snubbed every step I take? The lot for to the summit, and no danger. You can see yourself the trail is not steep. Faith! I will go now, just to show that I am at liberty."

He laughed, an unpleasant sound to it, yet made no effort to halt me. The rough path followed was narrow, but not steep enough to prove wearisome, and, as it led up through a covey in the earth, finally emerged at the top of the bluff at a considerable distance above the camp I had left. Thick woods covered the crest, although there were open plains beyond, and I was obliged to advance to the very edge in order to gain glimpse of the river.

Once there, however, with footing secure on a flat rock, the scene spread was one of wild and fascinating beauty. Directly below me were the rapids, rock strewn, the white spray leaping high in air, the swift, green water swirling past in tremendous volume. It scarcely seemed as though boats could live in that snout, or find passage between those jagged rocks, yet as I gazed more closely, I could trace the channel close in against the opposite shore, and note where the swift current bore back across the river.

Leaving far out, grasping a branch to keep from falling, I distinguished the canoe at the upper landing, and the Indians busily preparing camp. At first I saw nothing of any white man, but was gazing still when D'Artigny emerged from some shadow and stepped down beside the boat. I know not what instinct prompted him to turn and look up intently at the bluff towering above. I scarcely comprehended either what swift impulse led me to undo the neckerchief at my throat and hold it forth in signal. An instant he stared upward, shading his eyes with one hand.

I must have seemed a vision clinging there against the sky, yet all at once the truth burst upon him, and with a wave of the arm, he sprang up the low bank and joined his Indians. I could not hear what he said, but with a single word he left them and disappeared among the trees at the foot of the bluff.

He must have scrambled straight up the steep face of the bluff, for it could have been scarcely more than a minute when I heard him crunching a passage through the bushes, and then saw him emerge above the edge. Clinging to a tree limb, his eyes sought eagerly to locate me, and when I stepped forward, he sprang erect and bowed, jerking his hat from his head. There was about his action the enthusiasm of a boy, and his face glowed with an eagerness and delight which instantly broke down every barrier between us.

"You waved to me?" he exclaimed.

"You wished me to come?"

"Yes," I confessed, swept from my guard by his enthusiasm. "I have been anxious to confer with you, and this is my first opportunity."

"Why I thought you avoided me," he burst forth. "It is because I felt so that I have kept away."

"There was nothing else I could do but pretend," I exclaimed, gaining control over my voice as I spoke. "My every movement has been watched since we left Quebec; this is the first moment I have been left alone—if, indeed, I am now."

"And I glanced about doubtfully into the shadows of the forest."

"You imagine you may have been followed here? By whom? Cassion?"

"By himself or some emissary. Pere Allouez has been my jailer, but chances to be disabled at present. The commissaire permitted me to climb here alone, believing you to be safely camped above the rapids, yet his suspicions may easily revive."

"His suspicions?" the scout laughed softly. "So that then is the trouble! It is to keep us apart that he bids me make separate camp each night; and assigns me to every post of peril. I feel the honor, mademoiselle, yet why am I especially singled out for so great a distinction?"

"He suspects us of being friends. He knew I conferred with you at the convent, and even believes that you were with me hidden behind the curtain in the governor's office."

"Yet if all that be true," he questioned, his voice evidencing his surprise. "Why should our friendship arouse his antagonism to such an extent? I cannot understand what crime I have committed, mademoiselle. It is all mystery, even why you should be here with us on this long journey? Surely you had no such thought when we parted last?"

"You do not know what has occurred?" I asked, in astonishment. "No one has told you?"

"Told me! How? I have scarcely held speech with anyone but the Algonquian chief since we took to the water. Cassion has but given orders, and Cheret is mum as an oyster. I endeavored to find you in Montreal, but you were safely locked behind gray walls. That something was wrong I felt convinced, yet what it might be no one would tell me. I tried questioning the pere, but he only shook his head and left me unanswered. Tell me then, mademoiselle, by what right does this Cassion hold you as a captive?"

My lips trembled, and my eyes fell, yet I must answer.

"He is my husband, monsieur."

I caught glimpse of his face, picturing surprise, incredulity. He drew a sharp breath, and I noted his hand close tightly on the hilt of his knife.

"Your husband? That cur! Surely you do not jest?"

"Would that I did," I exclaimed, losing all control in sudden wave of anger. "No, monsieur, it is true."

And I told him swiftly the story of my enforced marriage.

"And Hugo Chevet, your uncle? Did he remain silent? make no protest?" he asked.

"I gave a gesture of despair. "Hail! Never did he even conceive what occurred, until I told him later on the river. Even now I doubt if his sluggish brain has grasped the truth. To him the alliance was an honor, an opening to possible wealth in the fur trade through Cassion's influence with La Barre. He could perceive nothing else except his good luck in thus ridding himself of the care of a poor niece who had been a sorry burden."

"But you explained to him?"

"I tried to, but only to regret the effort. Cassion was to be physically, his intellect is that of a big boy. All he can conceive is in vengeance—a desire to crush with his hands. He knew Cassion, because the man has robbed him of the use of my father's money; but for my position he cares nothing. To his mind the wrong has all been done to him, and I fear he will brood over it until he seeks revenge. If he does he will ruin everything."

D'Artigny stood silent, evidently in thought, endeavoring to grasp the threads of my tale.

"How did you attain the summit of this bluff?" he questioned at last.

"Yonder; there is a deer trail leading down."

"And you fear Cassion may follow?"

"He will likely become suspicious if I am long absent, and either seek me himself or send one of his men. This is the first moment of freedom I have experienced since we left Quebec. I hardly know how to behave myself."

"And we must guard it from being the last," he exclaimed, a note of determination and leadership in his voice. "There are questions I must ask, so that we may work together in harmony, but Cassion can never be allowed to suspect that we have communication. Let us go forward to the end of the trail where you came up; from there we can keep watch below."

He still grasped my hand, and I had no thought of withdrawing it. To me he was a friend, loyal, trustworthy, the one alone to whom I could confide. Together we clambered over the rough rocks to where the narrow cleft led downward.

CHAPTER X.

On the Summit of the Bluff. Scarcely screened from observation by the low growing bushes clinging to the edge of the bluff, and yet with a clear view of the cleft in the rocks half way to the river, D'Artigny found me seated on a hummock of grass, but remained standing himself. The sun was sinking low, warning us that our time was short, for with the first coming of twilight I would certainly be sought, if I failed to return to the lower camp.

"You would question me, monsieur," I asked doubtfully. "It was for that you led me here?"

"Yes," instantly aroused by my voice, but with eyes still scanning the trail. "And there is no time to waste, if I am to do my part intelligently. You must return before the sun disappears, or Monsieur Cassion might suspect you had lost your way. You have sought me for assistance, counsel perhaps, but this state of affairs has so taken me by surprise that I do not think clearly. You have a plan?"

"Scarcely that, monsieur. I would ascertain the truth, and my only means of doing so is through a confession by Francois Cassion. Arguing he is, and concealing, deeming himself admired and envied by all, especially my set. He has even dared boast to me of his weakness; I would make him love me."

"He turned now, and looked searchingly into my face, no glimpse of a smile in the gray eyes.

"Pardon; I do not understand," he said gravely. "You seek his love?"

I felt his manner a rebuke, a questioning of my honesty, and swift indignation brought the answering words to my lips.

"And why not pray? Must I not defend myself—and what other weapons are at hand? Do I owe him kindness or tender consideration? The man married me as he would buy a slave."

"You may be justified," he admitted regretfully. "Yet how is this to be done?"

I arose to my feet and stood before him, my face uplifted, and, with one hand, thrust aside the shade of my hat.

"Monsieur, deem you that impossible?"

His lips parted in a quick smile, revealing the white teeth, and he bowed low, flinging his hat to the ground and standing bareheaded.

"Mon dieu! No! Monsieur Cassion is to be congratulated. Yet it was my thought you said yonder that you despised the man."

"I do; what reason have I to feel otherwise? Yet there lies my strength in this battle. He laughs at women, plays with them, breaks their hearts. It is his pride and boast, and his success in the past has ministered to his self-conceit. He thought me of the same kind, but has already had his lesson. Do you not know what that means to a man like him? More than over he will desire my favor. A weak back he cared nothing; I was but a plaything, awaiting his pleasure; his wife to be treated as he pleased. He knows better now, and already his eyes follow me as though he were my dog."

"And that then is why you seek for me—that I may play my part in the game?"

I shrugged my shoulders, yet there was doubt in my eyes as I faced him. "Is there harm in such play, monsieur," I asked innocently, "with so important an end in view? 'Tis not that I seek amusement, but I must find out where this king's pardon is hidden, who concealed it, and obtain proof of the fraud which compelled my marriage. My only hope of release lies in compelling Francois Cassion to confess all he knows of this foul conspiracy. I must possess the facts before we return to Quebec."

"But of what use?" he insisted.

"You will still remain his wife, and your property will be in his control. The church will hold you to the marriage contract."

"There would be no pretense," he

"Not if I can establish the truth that I was deceived, defrauded and married by force. Once I have the proofs in my hands I will appeal to Louis—to the pope for relief. These men thought me a helpless girl, friendless and alone, ignorant of law, a mere waif of the frontier. Perhaps I was, but this experience has made of me a woman. In Montreal I talked with the mother superior and she told me of a marriage in France where the pere officiated under threat, and the pope dissolved the ties. If it can be done for others it shall be done for me. I will not remain the wife of Francois Cassion."

"Yet you would make him love you?"

"In punishment for his sins; in payment for those he has refused. As his duty I shall not shrink from Monsieur d'Artigny, even although you may deem it unwomanly. I do not mean it so, nor hold myself indebted for the effort. Why should I? I but war against him with his own weapons, and my cause is just. And I shall win, whether or not you give me your aid. How can I fail, monsieur? I am young and not ill to look upon; this you have already confessed; here in this wilderness I am alone, the only woman. He holds me his wife by law, and yet knows he must still win me. There are months of loneliness before us, and he will not look upon the face of another white woman in all those long years. Are there any French of my sex at Fort St. Louis?"

"No."

"Nor at St. Ignace, Pere Allouez assures me. I shall have no rival then in all this wilderness; you think me harmless, monsieur? Look at me, and say!"

"I do not need to look; you will have your game. I have no doubt, although the final result may not prove what you desire."

"You fear the end?"

"It may be so; you play with fire, and although I know little of women, yet I have felt the wild passions of men in hands where there is no restraint of law. The wilderness sees many tragedies—deceit, bitter, revengeful deeds—and 'tis best you use care. 'Tis my belief this Francois Cassion might prove a devil, once his heart was tricked. Have you thought of this?"

Yet You Would Make Him Love You?

I had thought of it, but with no mercy in my heart, yet as D'Artigny spoke I felt the ugliness of my threat more acutely, and, for an instant, stood before him white-lipped and ashamed. Then before me arose Cassion's face, sarcastic, supercilious, hateful, and I laughed in scorn of the weakness.

"Thought of it?" I exclaimed, "yes, but for that I care nothing. Why should I, monsieur? Has the man shown mercy to me, that I should feel regret because he suffers? As to his revenge, death is not more to be dreaded than a lifetime passed in his presence. But why do you make plea on his behalf—the man is surely no friend of yours?"

"I make no plea for him," he answered, strangely sober, "and claim no friendship. Any enemy to La Salle is an enemy to Rene d'Artigny; but I would not hint as a man should. It is not my nature to do a deed of treachery."

"You hold this treachery?"

"What else? You propose luring him to love you, that you may gain confession from his lips. To attain this end you barter your honesty, your womanhood; you take advantage of your beauty to enslave him; you count as ally the loneliness of the wilderness; ay, and if I understand aright, you have thrown me to awaken the man's jealousy. Is this not true?"

I drew a quick breath, my eyes staring into his face, and my limbs trembling. His words cut me like a knife, yet I would not yield, would not even acknowledge their truth.

"You are unjust, unfair," I burst forth impulsively. "You will see but the one side—that of the man. I cannot fight this battle with my hands, nor will I submit to such wrong without struggle. He has never thought to spare me, and there is no reason why I should show him mercy. I wish your good will, monsieur, your respect, but I cannot hold this plan which I propose as evil. Do you?"

He hesitated, looking at me with such perplexity in his eyes as to prove his doubt.

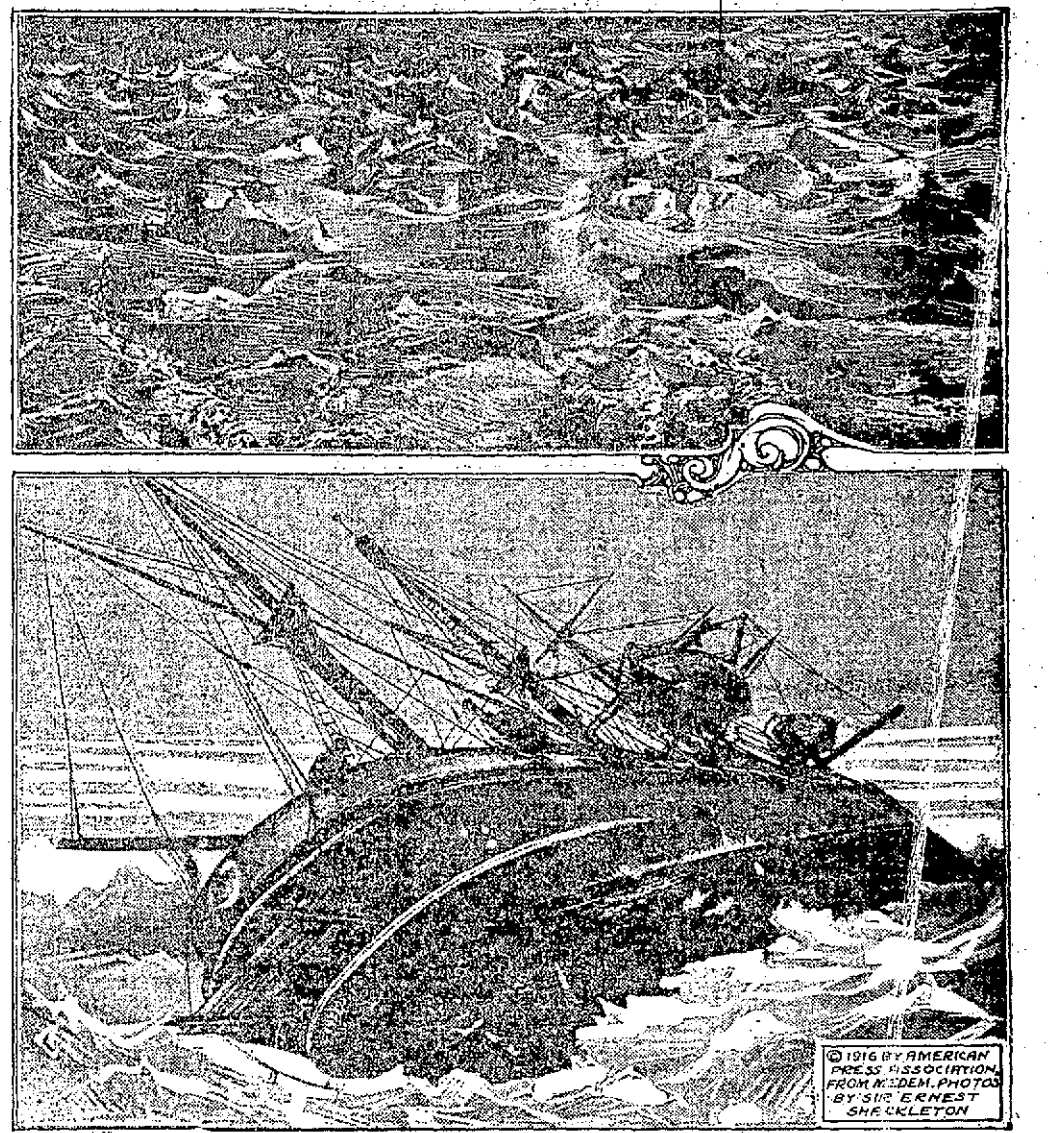

"I cannot judge you," he admitted at last, "only that it is not the way in which I have been trained. Neither will I stand between you and your revenge nor have part in it. I am your friend—now, always. In every honorable way I will serve you and your cause. If Cassion dares violence or insult he must reckon with me, though I faced his whole company. I pledge you this, but I will not play a part or act a lie even at your request."

"You mean you will not pretend to care for me?" I asked, my heart leaped at his words.

"There would be no pretense," he

Sir Ernest Shackleton's Own Pictures

of His Experiences in the Antarctic

Upper—ANTARCTIC ICE PACK— Lower, SHIP LYING ON HER SIDE IN ICE

These two pictures were made by Sir Ernest Shackleton himself during his present antarctic expedition. They show a scene in the great southern ice pack and his vessel almost on her beam ends in the ice. According to a message received at Buenos Aires, Argentina, Shackleton has reached the ice fields in his effort to rescue the 22 men left on Elephant Island last April when his expedition returned from the south polar zone. The relief party left Punta Arenas July 12 on the schooner Emma, which was to be towed as far south as possible by a Chilean government steamer, after which it was the intention of the explorer to continue his search for his men.

London reports that the Chilean steamer Yelcho has arrived at Ushuaia, Patagonia, in a damaged condition after towing the schooner Emma of the Shackleton expedition 240 miles south of Cape Horn. The Emma continued her voyage toward Elephant Island after the Yelcho left her.

answered frankly. "I do care for you, but I will not dishonor my thought of you by thus deliberately scheming to outwit your husband. I am a man of the woods, the wilderness; not since I was a boy have I dwelt in civilization, but in all that time I have been companion of men to whom honor was everything. I have been comrades with Fleur de la Salle, with Henri de Tooty, and cannot be guilty of an act of treachery, even for your sake. Perchance my code is not the same as the perfumed gallants of Quebec—yet it is mine, and learned in a hard school."

He went on quickly. "There are two things I cannot ignore—one is, that I am an employee of this Francois Cassion, pledged to his service by my own free will; the other is, that you are his wife, joined to him by Holy church, and although you may have assumed those vows under coercion, your promise is binding. I can but choose my path of duty and abide therein."

His words hurt, angered me; I lacked power of expression, ability to grasp his full meaning and purpose.

"You—you desert me then? You—you leave me to this fate?"

"I leave you to reconsider your choice of action," he returned gravely, his hat still in hand, his lips unsmiling. "I do believe your womanhood will find a better way to achieve its liberty, but what that way is I must trust you to discover. I am your friend, Adele, always—you will believe that?"

I did not answer; I could not, because of the choking in my throat, yet I let him grasp my hand. Once I raised my eyes to his, but lowered them instantly in strange confusion. Here was a man I did not understand, whose real motives I could not fathom. His protest had not yet penetrated my soul, and I felt toward him an odd mixture of respect and anger. He released my hand and turned away, and I stood motionless as he crossed the open space between the trees. At the edge of the bluff he paused and glanced about, lifting his hat in gesture of farewell. I do not think I moved or made response, and an instant later he was gone.

I know not how long I stood there staring into vacancy, haunted by regret, tortured by fear and humiliation. Slowly all else crystallized into indolence, with a fierce resolve to fight on alone. The sun sank, and all about me clung the purple twilight, yet I did not move. He had been unjust, unfair; his simple code of the woods could not be made to apply to such a situation as this of mine.

I heard no sound of warning, yet as I turned to retrace my way to the camp below I became suddenly aware of the presence of Cassion.

CHAPTER XI.

We Reach the Lake. He was between me and the deer trail, and enough of daylight yet remained to enable me to perceive the man clearly. How long he may have been there observing me I could not know, but when I first saw him he was bent forward, apparently deeply interested in some sudden discovery upon the ground at his feet.

"You thought me long in returning, monsieur?" I asked carelessly, and taking a step toward him. "It was cooler up here, and the view from the bluff yonder beautiful. You may gain some conception of it still, if you care."

He lifted his head with a jerk and stared into my face.

"Ay! no doubt," he said harshly. "Yet I hardly think it was the view which held you here so long. Whose best priet is this, madame? not yours, surely."

I glanced where he pointed, my heart leaping, yet not altogether with regret. The young scout had left his trail behind, and it would serve me whether by his will or no.

"Certainly not mine," I laughed. "I trust, monsieur, your powers of observation are better than that—'tis hardly a compliment."

"Nor is this time for any lightness of speech, my lady," he retorted, his anger flamed by my indifference. "Whose is it then, I ask you? What man has been your companion here?"

"You jump at conclusions, monsieur," I returned coldly. "The story imprinted of a man's boot on the turf is scarcely evidence that I have had a companion. Kindly stand aside and permit me to descend."

"Mon dieu! I will not!" and he blocked my passage. "It has stood enough of your tantrums already in the boat. Now we are alone and I will have my say. You shall remain here until I learn the truth."

His rage rather amused me, and I felt not the slightest emotion of fear, although there was threat in his words and in the gesture accompanying them. I do not think the smile even deserted my lips, as I sought a comfortable seat on a fallen tree trunk, fully conscious that nothing would so infuriate the man as studied indifference.

"Very well, monsieur, I await your investigation with pleasure," I said sweetly. "No doubt it will prove interesting. You honor me with the suspicion that I had an appointment here with one of your men?"

"No matter what I suspect."

"Of course not; you treat me with marked consideration. Perchance others have camped here, and explored these bluffs."

"The print is fresh, not ancient, and none of the men from my camp have come this way."

He strode forward across the narrow open space and disappeared into the fringe of trees bordering the edge of the bluff. It would have been easy for me to depart, to escape to the security of the tent below, but curiosity held me motionless. I knew what he would discover, and preferred to face the consequences where I was free to answer him face to face. I wished him to be suspicious, to feel that he had a rival; I would fan his jealousy to the very danger point. Nor had I long to wait. Forth from the shade of the trees he burst and came toward me, his face white, his eyes blazing.

"'Tis the fellow I thought," he burst forth, "and he went down the face of the bluff yonder. So you dared to have trust with him?"

"With whom, monsieur?"

"D'Artigny the young fool? Do you think me blind? Did I not know you were together in Quebec? What are you laughing at?"

"I was not laughing, monsieur. Your ridiculous charge does not amuse me. I am a woman; you insult me; I am your wife; you charge me with indiscretion. If you think to win me with such cowardly insinuations you know little of my nature. I will not talk with you, nor discuss the matter. I return to the camp."

His hands clinched as though he had the throat of an enemy between them, but angry as he was, some vague doubt restrained him.

"Mon dieu! I'll fight the dog!"

"D'Artigny, you mean? 'Tis his trade, I hear, and he is good at it."

"Bah! a bungler of the woods. I doubt if he ever crossed blades with a swordsmen. But mark you this, madame, he had feels my steel if ever you so much as speak to him again. There was contempt in my eyes, nor did I strive to disguise it."

"Am I your wife, monsieur, or your slave?"

"My wife, and I know how to hold you! Mon dieu, but you shall learn that lesson. I was a fool to ever give the trait place in the boat. La Barre warned me that he would make trouble. Now I tell you what will occur if you play false with me."

"You may spare your threats—they weigh nothing. The Sieur d'Artigny is my friend, and I shall address him when it pleases me. With whatever quarrel may arise between you I have no interest. Let that suffice, and now I bid you good night, monsieur."

He made no effort to halt me, nor to follow, and I made my way down the darkening path, without so much as turning my head to observe his movements. It was almost like a play to me, and I was reckless of the consequences, intent only on my purpose.

In the early dawn we broke camp as usual, except that chosen boatmen guided the emptied canoes through the rapids, while the others of the party made portage along the rough shore. In the smooth water above we all embarked again, and won our way against the current. The advance company had departed before our arrival, nor did I again obtain glimpse of D'Artigny for many days.

LIGHT OFFERINGS OF SPOT FURNACE COKE MAKE MARKET A SHADE STRONGER

Shippers Have Difficulty Keeping Up Contract Requirements.

PRICE IS BEING HELD AT $2.75

Only Odd Lots Can Now be Had at Less; Embargoes Complicate the Foundry Situation; A Strongholding Coal Market Will Sustain Coke.

Special to The Weekly Courier.
PITTSBURGH, August 2.—The spot furnace coke market is a shade stronger than a week ago, the condition arising not from increased demand but from continued light offerings. The great majority of shippers are having difficulty in maintaining shipments on contracts in a manner satisfactory to consumers. In nearly all instances they succeed, so that there is no demand for spot coke from furnaces to speak of, but according to the accounts of shippers they are more or less on the ragged edge all the time, and they continue to importune shippers for deliveries.

Producers of coke insist that the spot furnace coke market is $2.75 and while they cannot report any considerable tonnage of sales at such a figure the explanation is that the furnaces have no occasion to buy. Substantially all air under contract brokers frequently report purchases at $2.50 or $2.60 but these seem to be odd lots that do not find their way into the general market. There is no interest in furnace coke on contract and the market is practically nonexistent.

Foundry coke is in fair demand, but the situation is somewhat complicated by embargoes at several eastern points. These serve to make the market appear easier in some respects and stiffer in others. In general there are no sales to consumers at less than $2.75, and several makers of standard brands are selling at no less than $3.50. Contract foundry coke is at the same level, making the general market quotable as follows:

Spot furnace $2.75
Contract furnace, nominal $2.75
Spot foundry 3.50
Contract foundry 3.50

The coke trade continues to endeavor to forecast the future, when the manufacture of by-product coke has become still more important. Two large plants are expected to be completed and put in operation some time this month, those of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company and Corvigan, McKinney & Company, each comprising 201 ovens. Various other plants are to follow. A much more hopeful view of the future is entertained than was the case a few months ago, for two reasons:

1. The demand for steam coal has increased and the Pittsburgh coal market is much stronger than it was. It is expected, therefore, that there will be such a market for coal as to prevent coal prices from slumping, and only a fair price for coal as the Pittsburgh district market goes, is sufficient to give Connellsville a basic price below which coke could not go.

2. It is now figured out that with all blast furnaces striving for maximum outputs, and likely to be under pressure for a long time, the demand will be for the best grades of coke only, that they will make the market and the poorer grades will simply disappear without affecting the general market situation.

The pig iron market continues extremely dull with only scattered inquiry for foundry iron in small lots, practically no inquiry for basic iron, and no demand for Bessemer except for export. In this direction there continues to be a fair degree of activity. The market continues to be quotable as follows:

Bessemer $21.00
Basic $21.00
No. 2 country $21.00
Mailable $21.00
Gray Iron $21.00

These prices are for a B. Valley furnace, prices delivered Pittsburgh being higher by the 36-cent freight.
W. F. Sawyer & Company announce their quotations of the average prices of Bessemer and basic in July at $21 and $18.00 respectively, the same as for June.

OPERATORS INEFFICIENT

Trade Commissioner Hurley Finds They Do Not Use Business Methods.

In an address before the West Virginia coal operators a few days ago Chairman Edwin A. Hurley of the Federal Trade Commission declared that about 90 per cent of the coal operators are inefficient in that they do not practice good business methods, he said.

West Virginia operators have not been selling coal, rather the consumers were taking it away from them. He demanded that self-analysis be the foremost, and that the operators should carefully criticize their own doings and their own methods of conducting business before they ask aid from outside sources.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS.

To Compensation Law That are Being Laid by Labor Unions.

Among the amendments to the Compensation Act which will be brought before the next Legislature by labor unions is one to reduce to three days the time of disability before the dependent become eligible to compensation, making the period the same as is now provided by the New York law. Under the Pennsylvania law the period of compensation is limited to 300 weeks, which it is desired shall be extended to 500 weeks, same as in New York.

COKE TRADE SUMMARY.

The Connellsville operators sent out 117,000 tons of coke last week in spite of the terribly hot weather which made coal drawing a severe trial upon the men. Weather conditions are better this week, but church holidays intervening will perhaps cut down production somewhat. The lighting of by-product ovens in other sections last month took 50,000 tons of Connellsville coke away, but the resources of the region seem to be taxed as greatly as ever, and the operators are looking on the price of coke in consequence. The explanation of this lies in the labor situation. The lack of labor efficiency has resulted in curtailing production until it has fallen within the red need requirements of the trade.

The region is running 85 per cent of its ovens at 612 capacity, six days is the rule of running but it is observed in the branch by-product coal is being shipped out. The coke supply is good though not always 100% for coal cars. There has been some shifting about of merchant ovens, but no marked change in the active list.

No offerings of spot coke being made, the price holds at $2.75.

WEATHER EFFECTS THE STEEL OUTPUT

Curtailed Ranges From 10 to 20 Per Cent; Shipments and Bookings Decreased; Situation Strong.

Special to The Weekly Courier.
NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The American Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the steel and iron situation tomorrow as follows:

Estimates of the curtailment in finished steel production, comparing June and July, run from 10% to 20%, entirely on account of weather conditions. The men yield to the heat more than when there is less prosperity. With most producers June was the month of heaviest output. The United States Steel Corporation is expected to show about the same loss in finished production in July as the 300,000 tons shown for June. On account of the reduced shipments this showing could be made if the bookings decreased by one-sixth.

The steel situation is a strong one all along the line and this is regarded as a very favorable consideration. The general dullness in the domestic market. Only a month of the summer dull period now remains to be traversed, and the general feeling is that the market is stronger than it was expected two or three months ago would be the case at this date. Unfinished steel is very strong, perhaps stronger than a week ago and the export demand continues good for practically all descriptions of unfinished steel including shell quality.

Effective August 1st the Carnegie Steel Company has advanced steel bars from 2.60 to 2.65, perhaps for the purpose of putting a final quietus on the belief entertained in some quarters that bars had sold or would be sold at the cut price of 2.50. Steel bars do not usually advance at this time of the year or in market conditions as quiet as the present.

Neither the production of a general advance in wire products or that of a reduction in the wire galvanizing differential has been verified to date. The wire market, however, is described as strong and with mills booked ahead about the usual distance.

Pig iron continues dull in all districts, so dull that the buying movement recently predicted in some quarters for August can hardly occur so early, but the general theory is still held that increasing steel making capacity will cause pig iron to be scarcer than it has been.

CONNELLSVILLE PEOPLE GET INSTANT ACTION

Those who have used it in Connellsville are astonished at the instant action of simple buckthorn bark glycerine, etc., as noted in Adler's. Because it acts on both lower and upper bowels, one spoonful Adler's relieves almost any case of constipation, sour stomach or gas. It removes such surprising foul matter that a few doses often relieve or prevent appendicitis. A short treatment helps chronic stomach trouble. A. A. Clarke—Adv.

YOUTHFUL EFFECTS IN SPORT STOCKS.

By Lois Crane.

Sport clothes seem to have stolen the prerogative of the "fountain of youth." By donning an effective outfit, the discerning woman knows she can discount years of her life. What is more kindly to the tell-tale lines around the eyes than the broad-brimmed sport hat. The silhouette itself formed by the jaunty, flaring skirt is a challenge to unwelcome years of discretion. Never before has it been possible to wear such glowing, though without becoming, colors without offending propriety and good taste. Accessories in the form of sailor collar, brightly colored handkerchiefs, belts, are all notes in the melody of youth. It is about the ubiquitous sport clothes.

Many attractive features are incorporated in the sport frock pictured above. The skirt is of blue and white striped silk jersey. The extreme fullness is obtained by tiny inverted pleats, held in place at the waist by an inch-wide fluting. A smart trimming is afforded by the double row of pleating at the hem. Voluminous patch-pockets complete the fetching skirt. The midday blouse is of white chiffon cloth with sailor collar and cuffs to match the skirt. Exceptionally smart is the broad-brimmed sport hat. It is of Legion dyed to match the suit. Linen of contrasting color is applied upon the crown with buttonhole stitching of white. The low shoes of white kid are unusually distinctive.

NOVELTIES IN HOSIERY. Novelties in hosiery and especially that of the fair sex are many and most interesting. They are divided into either the sport or dressy class. The former, of course, include those shown for golf, tennis, hunting, and the various other sports. Especially smart are those shown in heavy woolen with color stripes either up and down or around the leg. They are decidedly attractive, but, sad enough, only the woman with a dainty ankle could think of wearing them. However, there are fascinating sport hose shown in silk also, with such hot colors and plain colored tops. These are very attractive for tennis or golf, and may be had in any number of color combinations. Sport stockings in silk are also shown with novel designs, worked out in Polka dots. In this instance also color combinations are used to splendid advantage.

The dressy stockings, of course, include the plain colors in silk or contrasting touch of embroidery or the evidence of dainty clocks. The clock ornament is shown this season in more varied arrangements than ever. There is one that is a draw stitch, permitting an openwork effect. The black trimmed with white and vice-versa prove very popular. Colors, too, are extensively used and among those most popular are the shades of tan, navy, gray, brown, and flesh. The vogue for high kid shoes in both button and laced effects is undoubtedly one reason that there is such a demand for colored silk hose. The increased number of dainty low shoes also create a demand for daintily finished hosiery, for one is lost without the other.

MEXICAN IN JAPAN SAYS CARRANZA IS FIRMLY ENTRENCHED

Everything in Perfect Order, Colonel Romero Tells Nippon.

HAS CONFIDENCE OF THE PEOPLE

Army Strong Enough to Control Bandits So Withdrawal of Americans is Urged; Has Not Presented Credentials to Madero, but Says He Has, Him

By Associated Press.

TOKYO, Aug. 3.—Colonel Manuel Romero, formerly special commissioner of the late President Huerta of Mexico to Japan and now a representative of the Carranza government here, arrived in Japan about the first of June announcing that he possessed credentials which made him minister to the Tokyo government. He has not yet been presented to Emperor Yoshitaka and until he has the Japanese government will consider Mr. Romero, the charge d'affaires as the official representative of the de facto Carranza government.

"Mexico is powerful enough to deal with her own affairs at present," Mr. Romero was quoted as saying in the Japanese press when he landed. He went on: "Everything in Mexico just now is in perfect order or is rapidly assuming that condition. Commerce, industry, agriculture, communications, and enterprises of many other kinds are all in normal condition. Reports to the contrary are absolutely unfounded."

"General Carranza's government stands on a firm foundation and has the confidence of the people. No man is more able or better fitted than General Carranza to govern Mexico. General Carranza's government has ample revenues to meet all necessary outlays.

"Relations between Mexico and other countries will become more cordial. The Mexican government is on the most friendly terms with the United States government. General Carranza has an army strong enough to subjugate the rebels or bandits. This is the reason General Carranza is now requesting an early withdrawal of the United States troops from Mexican territory."

Negotiations Said to be Under Way for Guffey's Coal Holdings.

Unconfirmed information has been current in West Virginia that a majority of the $811,000 of bonds of The West Virginia Company, created to take over the holdings of Colonel J. M. Guffey, have been purchased by a person whose identity has not been made known.

It is said that about 30,000 acres of coal have been taken over which will render $450,000 available for liquidating the debt of Guffey.

"SOUL MATES"—William Russell appears today at the Paramount in a new Mutual production. "Bill" is undoubtedly one of the most popular leading men on the screen. In this picture he is supported by an all-star cast including Charlotte Burton and Leona Hutton. "Soul Mates," written by Edward A. Kaufman, is a powerful dramatized and elaborately staged. Tomorrow is Paramount day and a late Lasky picture will be shown. This is "Alien Souls," with Sessue Hayakawa the renowned Japanese star. Hayakawa is a splendid actor with experience upon both the native and the American stage. While in Japan he played Shakespeare in roles and other classical parts familiar to lovers of the English drama. His acting is remarkable for its sincerity and repression. He has been with the Lasky company for some time, originally playing minor bits, then appearing as leading man for other famous stars, and now at last he is a star in his own right. His last appearance here was in "The Cheat" with Fannie Ward. Many expressions of admiration for his acting in that picture were heard, but Hayakawa himself was not satisfied. The story was not true to Japanese character he said, picturing the Japanese as despicable villains. "Alien Souls" shows the Japanese in a truer light according to Hayakawa. In this production he has a sympathetic role. Tami Aoki, his wife, appears in the leading female part.
